Business Controls, Inc. Nominated For Three 2007 CSIA APEX Awards
June 5 Event To Spotlight Colorado Technology Companies, People

Littleton, COLO – May 15, 2007 – Business Controls, Inc., the country's leading incident reporting, risk mitigation, and consulting firm, announced it has been nominated in three categories for the 2007 CSIA APEX Awards. The three nominations are the most for any Colorado company.

CSIA, the Colorado Software & Internet Association, the largest and most influential association in Colorado for the IT industry, recognizes the APEX Awards as the year's premier event for recognizing outstanding accomplishments and leadership by Colorado's advanced technology companies and people. The event, presented by CSIA will take place June 5, 2007 at the Seawell Ballroom in the Denver Center for Performing Arts Complex in Denver.

Business Controls, Inc. (BCI) is a leading SaaS ("Software as a Service") provider of incident reporting and management software and risk consulting services. From a Microsoft .NET platform, BCI delivers fast, economic risk mitigation solutions to over 22,000 client locations in 81 countries. Utilizing its award-winning technology and patent-pending Business Intelligence (BI) gathering methodology, BCI delivers software solutions via the Internet that enables its clients to reduce their risk due to internal criminal activity, misconduct and unethical behavior.

The two flagship products are MySafeWorkplace and MySafeCampus and were nominated for a record three nominations for the 2007 awards. The three nominated categories were for Most Innovative Technology Product, Distinguished Services Award, and Outstanding Tech Company of the Year.

"We would have been happy being nominated for one award, let alone three" said Steven Foster, Business Controls, Inc.'s President. "With the recent school shootings and employee misconduct ever prevalent, our systems are perfect at gaining insight into warning signs of issues before they become larger or even tragic events." Foster went on to say, "It is always great to be recognized in your industry for the products you deliver and as proud sponsor to CSIA we are looking forward to the June 5th award ceremony."

The 2007 APEX Awards event is expected to draw more than 600 attendees from throughout the region. Tickets are available at www.csiaonline.com or call CSIA at 303.592.4070.

“It’s no mystery that many Colorado technology companies have had great success and developments this past year,” said Su Hawk, president, CSIA. “Our APEX Awards provide the industry a once-a-year opportunity to celebrate their success, and generate awareness around these notable companies, including Business Controls, Inc.
